DEUTSCHLAND SAFE AT BREMEN

By Telegram to The Freeman.
London, Aug. 24.—The German merchant submarine Deutschland, which arrived at the mouth of the Weser river on Wednesday, was slightly damaged, says an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from The Hague today. The eastward voyage from Baltimore to Germany was made in 23 days. A German wireless dispatch picked up on the English coast said that all the members of Captain Paul Koenig's crew were well.
Reports from Bremen state that the Deutschland's arrival surprised the directors of the ocean company as she was not expected until a later date, says The Hague correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Company. The submarine was slightly damaged and the members of her crew were very unwilling to talk of the homeward voyage.
"Captain Koenig is being feted as a national hero and has been summoned to headquarters by the Kaiser for personal congratulations. The owners received news of the vessel's progress seven days ago and it was only then that the Deutschland's sister ship, the Bremen, was allowed to leave for the United States."

AUTOMOBILE HIT A TRAIN.
Athens Couple Thrown in Air at South Cairo Crossing.

Mr. and Mrs. Cosio J. Leone, of Athens, are at their summer home at Brookburg in the Catskill mountains suffering from many painful cuts and bruises which they sustained Wednesday afternoon when their automobile collided with a Catskill mountain railway train. Both were thrown from their wrecked car but physicians state that neither was seriously injured.
They were the only occupants of the car and were on the way from Cairo to Catskill. The accident happened at the first railroad crossing east of South Cairo. The train was filled with summer boarders on their way to the mountains, having arrived in Catskill about thirty minutes before on the day boat.
The train was stopped and Mr. and Mrs. Leone were given attention. Later they were taken in a motor car to their summer home. According to one man, Mrs. Leone was thrown ten feet in the air when the auto collided with the train. It is thought that on account of the heavy mist and storm clouds neither the engineer nor Mr. Leone saw the danger in time to avert the accident. Mr. Leone is associated with his brother in the construction of a new state road near Windham.

GERMAN VILLAGE BENEFICIARY
If Nyack Man's Will Stands Submarine Will Have to Carry Bequest.

When John W. Schuler of Nyack died he left $10,000 for the benefit of the poor in his native village, Wiedenbach, in Germany. This amount was to remain invested for thirty-two years and then be forwarded abroad. The $10,000 has increased to more than $27,000. Heirs of the bequest have come forward now, protesting against the payment of the bequest. The Imperial German government will be represented when the will comes before Surrogate McCauley next week for final accounting. M. B. Patterson has been retained to fight against any alteration of the bequest. The opponents of the will claim that while the bequest is now legal under the New York laws, it was not so when the will was first probated in 1884.

I. O. FELDSTEIN IN TROUBLE AGAIN

This Time It Started Over An Argument as to When An Officer Had the Right to Make An Arrest, and Cost Him $5.

Isadore O. Feldstein, the tailor at 750 Broadway, was arrested on Wednesday evening by Policeman Kuehn on a charge of disorderly conduct, and this morning Recorder Lang after hearing the story of the affair as related by the officer and by the tailor fined Feldstein $5, which was paid.

From the story as brought out at the hearing it seems that Feldstein was sitting in front of a store on upper Broadway with another young man. He was watching an incident of an officer in a tugboat chasing an automobile which was running without a tail light. He put forth the argument that the officer had no right to make the arrest as he was not dressed in his uniform.

The other young man did not agree with Feldstein on the proposition, and to settle the dispute Policeman Kuehn who was passing was accosted by Feldstein and the question put up to him for settlement. The officer explained that it made no difference whether an officer had a uniform or not, but that he had the right to make an arrest.

Feldstein did not agree with the officer and said that in Russia where he came from an officer had to wear his uniform before he could make an arrest.

Kuehn said that was not the law in this country.
In the argument that followed the officer said that Feldstein became noisy, and he advised him not to talk so loud as a crowd was being drawn to the scene. Feldstein refused to take the officer's advice, and according to the officer he began to shove him. Finally Kuehn told him he had better go and sit in front of his own store. Feldstein replied he would not go, and said that Kuehn had no authority to arrest him. At the argument Kuehn said that Feldstein kicked him above the knee then Kuehn placed Feldstein under arrest, and as he resisted he used his club and hit Feldstein over the legs a few times.

By this time quite a crowd had gathered when Kuehn and his prisoner walked across the street to the police signal box so that Kuehn could ring in for the patrol wagon. Kuehn asked the crowd getting larger to get away from the scene, thinking to get away from the crowd.

When Kuehn made the proposition he said that Feldstein turned and addressed the crowd stating that the officer wanted to take up a dark street and beat him up.

Feldstein interrupted the officer's story to say that the reason he did not want to walk up Liberty street with the officer was because it was a dark street and Kuehn was a bigger man.

When questioned by Recorder Lang about the affair Feldstein said he was not making a disturbance and thought the officer had no right to arrest him as he was not doing any loud talking.

A glance at the police docket by Recorder Lang showed that Feldstein had been in trouble before. The last time he had been fined $5.
Finally after hearing both sides of the affair Recorder Lang found Feldstein guilty and fined him the amount stated. The recorder also informed Feldstein that in this country any private citizen had the right to make an arrest when he saw a crime committed.

JOY RIDERS HIT WEST SHORE ENGINE

Ran Into Locomotive at West Park Crossing—Girls From Poughkeepsie With Men From Newburgh—Refused to Give Names.

About six o'clock this morning a Hudson six automobile, New York license number 103935, containing three people, two elderly men, and three young girls, side-swiped an engine on the West Shore crossing at West Park, wrecking the machine and hurling the occupants out. The railroad people made an attempt to secure the names of the party, but were unable to do so as they refused to say who they were. Another automobile passing was stopped by the party who climbed aboard and were last seen headed toward Highland.

All of the party were badly shaken up, and it is a wonder that they escaped with such slight injuries.

The injuries to the girls were the first findings their friends had of the accident. The girls are from Poughkeepsie and absolutely refused to state who they were with. It is thought the men were from Newburgh and that the party had spent the night in Kingston and had left this city early in an effort to catch the first ferry to Poughkeepsie from Highland.

The girls were Dorothy Maynard, Margaret Miller and Beatrice Davis. The Maynard and Miller girls were cut and bruised about the head and the Davis girl had a finger broken. It is thought the party was somewhere in West Park.

CAPT KOENIG GRATEFUL TO U. S.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Berlin, via Sayville Wireless, Aug. 24.—Keen appreciation for his treatment at the hands of the United States was voiced today by Captain Paul Koenig, of the merchant submarine Deutschland, who has just arrived from Baltimore with a cargo of incalculable value to the German government.

In an interview with a representative of the Vossische Zeitung, Captain Koenig said that the United States government had adopted an attitude toward the Deutschland which was just and entirely neutral.

Captain Koenig added in his statement: "The American authorities protected the submarine's departure in every way. These measures of precaution were increased after an English man of war entered the port of Baltimore in the night time. Eight British warships cruised off the American coast surrounding the Virginia capes.

"The first part of our homeward voyage was made through stormy weather, but our ship proved entirely seaworthy. During the whole voyage of 4,200 miles, we sailed under water only a distance of 100 miles."

AT THE OLD GAME.
Kingston Youth in Trouble Once More in New York.

For the past six weeks agents and owners of exclusive drive apartment houses have been telling the Harlem detectives about a young man with a grand manner who was swindling them by means of bad checks and plain theft, says the New York Sun.

He went up and down the drive and through the side streets pretending to be looking for a furnished apartment on a W. F. B. lease. He said he was Frederick Brinnier, a son of County Judge Brinnier of Kingston. He would point through windows at any yacht that caught his eye in the Hudson, saying, "That's mine. I want to get a home as near to my mooring place as possible."

His conversation was full of automobile country estates and wealthy friends. He gave as a reference the Marconi Company of 42 Broadway, where he said he was an important officer, but he never returned to face proof that this claim was untrue.

When he found an apartment that took his eye he gave a check for a year's or half a year's rent in advance. If left alone in an apartment he usually managed—so the police say—to pocket whatever valuables were easily assimilable. Sometimes he succeeded in getting change in cash for a check that exceeded the stipulated rental. Among the apartment houses that complained to the police were the Chesterfield at 260 Riverside Drive, the Cromwell at 600 Riverside Drive, and the houses at 245 West 105th street and 611 West 156th street.

Yesterday Harlem detectives learned that Brinnier was in the Tombs prison. He had been arrested in Ellenville, N. Y., on Monday by Headquarters Detective Hayes charged with stealing $25 from Arthur Werner and held in $500 bail in the Tombs court. He was arraigned in special sessions today and resumed until August 31.

According to an anonymous message received yesterday by Detective McGee of the Harlem branch, Brinnier "is the man who has been robbing the 'millionaires' colony at Rhinecliff, N. Y."

The police circular describing him says he is addicted to the use of drugs.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, Aug. 24.—Realizing sales continued at the opening and though fractional losses were sustained the tone in the stock market was steady. After the first fifteen minutes there was a resumption of aggressive buying and substantial advances were recorded. Reading was one of the most active features. After yielding 104 to 107 1/4, and advancing to 108 3/4, Marine Preferred declined to 100 3/4, followed by a rally to 101. Steel Common declined 3/4 to 97 1/4, and then rose a point. The copper stocks were in good demand, and the railroad list generally showed a firm tone after the opening.

STREET GOSSIP ABOUT TOWN

It is reported that there will be an over-production of cabbages this year, and we hope the same may be said of the tobacco crop or we know what we may expect the next time we buy a cigar of the price we smoke.

We note in the newspapers that a few undesirables are to be barred from Sing Sing and removed to Clinton prison, which leads us to wonder if the remaining inmates at Sing Sing may be classed as desirables.

It is nearly time for some inspection to visit our local jail, and suggest some improvements—probably electric fans for each cell, considering the weather.

We would not object to a few of the already suggested improvements at our house—if some one else paid for them.

Not that it is news, but as a gentle reminder, we would remark that coal prices take another jump the first of the month.

Still it is too hot to worry over how cold it is going to be a few months hence.

If we were of an inventive nature, we would direct our efforts towards ransoming some of the heat these days and storing it up for use this winter. Just imagine how nice it would be when the mercury was down around zero to have the wife say "Go down cellar and bring up one of those large cans of sunshine, and open it as it feels rather chilly in the home, you."

Down in New York city twenty thousand barbers have struck for higher wages. We expect to hear of the safety razor factories working over-time. All it needs now is for some genius to invent a machine whereby we could make a successful job cutting our own hair.

Speaking of inventions we rather lean toward an iceless icebox.

"Some polite fiction—"How becoming your hat is."
"Pleased to have met you."
"What a handsome baby."
"So glad you called."
"You have such behaved children."

From what we read we gather that the large milk concerns who want to raise the retail price of milk are losing money, but we have so far failed to read of any of them deciding to go out of business.

Not that it is important, but has any one heard who the candidates were on the American party ticket.

The American party? Why, yes, that is the party that was organized by Sutter a few years ago, and had as its emblem the Liberty bell.

There is no foundation to the rumor that Villa is aboard the submarine Bremen.

We were greatly astonished to read in the newspaper that a man had been arrested for choking his mother-in-law, as for years we had been under the impression from reading the jokes about mother-in-law that it would have been the other way about.

Have you ever noticed how the women who believe in equal rights and want the vote will look daggers at a man if he does not get up and give them his seat in a trolley car.

CLINTONDALE.

Clintondale, Aug. 24.—Miss Ethel Jenkins of Canton, Pa., is spending her vacation with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jenkins.

Frank Wardell of Boston, Mass., visited his father, Joseph H. Wardell, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Conklin, Jr., are receiving congratulations on the arrival of a young son at their home on Saturday last.

Several from this place attended the funeral of Mrs. Nelson Yeager at Modena on Monday afternoon.

On Wednesday night, August 23, the Rev. Paul S. Hill of New Berlin, N. Y., will be present to begin a series of special meetings to continue until September 3rd, inclusive.

If the epidemic of infantile paralysis increases there is a likelihood of the meeting being postponed until a later date. There will be a meeting each night with the exception of Saturday night, and a meeting on each Sunday morning. Mr. Hill is a good soloist as well as a splendid preacher. OUR DAILY PATTERN.

1375.—A Simple But Becoming Dress in "Robe de Tailleur" Style.—Ladies' Dress With Sleeve in Either of Two Lengths. And With Eight Gore Skirt.

As here shown white taffeta was used, with black and white striped silk for trimming. In voile, crepe, lawn, gingham or raitine, this style would be equally smart. It has simple but pleasing lines, and may be made with the sleeve in wrist or elbow length. The gored skirt flares gracefully at the foot, and makes this style especially suited to materials of narrow width. The pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. It requires 8 yards of 36 inch material for a 36 inch size, which measures about 34 yards at lower edge of the skirt.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Rondout, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

The men of the earth build houses, halls, And chamber, roofs and domes, But the women of earth, we know, The women build the homes.

JELLY MAKING.

There are two elements needed to make good jelly. These are pectin and acidic juices.

When these are present the success or failure depends almost entirely upon the amount of sugar used. The old rule of a measure of juice to a measure of sugar has no doubt been the cause of most of our poor jellies.

A given volume of juice which contains a certain amount of pectin can use a definite proportion of sugar only. Currants and partly ripened grapes are rich in pectin, and are fairly acid so that they usually demand equal measures, while three-fourths to one will be the proper proportion for raspberries and blackberries. Much depends upon the fruit itself.

When it is necessary to add water to fruits boil the juice until it is by appearance and taste ready for the addition of sugar.

After the winter's supply of grape juice has been made, cover the pulp with water and use for jelly or a good marmalade may be made from this by-product.

The more thoroughly the juice is clarified by skimming before the sugar is added the better from an economical standpoint.

Sugar is heated before adding to the juice to save time in the cooking process.

By using sour apple juice with fruits too sweet, or lacking in pectin a most palatable article may be prepared.

Blueberries make a most tasty jelly which has enough acid in it to give it character.

The best quick test for time to remove jelly is when the jelly breaks off as a portion of it is dropped from the spoon. The time-honored one of cooling a little in a saucer is not a safe one, for many things may happen to the hot jelly waiting on the stove. Time is too precious at this stage to waste it in long experiments.

The length of time for boiling depends upon the kind of fruit juice, and the richness (or amount of water it contains).

BROTHERHOOD MEN GETTING IMPATIENT

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Aug. 23.—The session of the brotherhood committee today developed that many of the members are getting very impatient over the tactics of the railroad presidents in delaying action. One delegate, Thomas Donovan, representing a division of the Boston & Albany railway, made a bitter speech denouncing the attitude of the railroad presidents. In conclusion he threw a bomb into the meeting by moving that all of the committee members return at once to their home stations and leave the four chiefs of the brotherhoods in Washington to "arrange for a general strike."

Donovan pressed his motion but after all of the big four heads had been thrown into the machinery under existing conditions, he agreed to withdraw it temporarily. The brotherhood conference finally was adjourned until tomorrow at 10 o'clock.

A brief meeting of the railroad executives at noon adjourned without action. The executives were notified that the committee of eight was not yet prepared to report and that the committee was unable to fix a definite time when a report would be forthcoming. The general meeting then adjourned until later in the day to await the committee's deliberations. At that time no effort had been made to arrange for a White House conference.

FOR TRUTHFUL ADVERTISING.

Rotary Club's Resolution Calling For Honest Publicity.

George S. De Rouville, secretary of the Albany Rotary Club and advertising manager of the Cottrell & Leonard Company of Albany, N. Y., who was a delegate to the annual convention of the International Association of Rotary Clubs at Cincinnati, has returned to Albany with the text of a resolution advocating truth in advertising. Mr. De Rouville was secretary of the hat trade section which was sponsor for the resolution.

Of twenty-seven resolutions presented to the convention only nine were passed, a fact which makes the adoption of the truthful advertising resolution all the more significant, says Mr. De Rouville. The resolution reads:

"Whereas, The Rotary principles are fully expressed by the sentiment that 'He profits most who serves best'; and

"Whereas, We believe that advertising has come to be a vital force in the business world; and

"Whereas, We believe that some merchants are inclined to make misstatements regarding values, prices and qualities in their advertising; and

"That it is the duty of the International Association of Rotary Clubs:

"That truth in advertising is beneficial to every one using the same, and it is recommended that Rotarians favor the enactment of laws to procure truth in all forms of advertising in states which now have no such statutes.

"That what is known as the Printers' Ink model law be recommended for adoption when applicable."

Married Widow of Two Brothers.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Carthage, Miss., Aug. 23.—Following the injunction laid down in the old law of Moses, the third brother of the family of a fast fading tribe of Choctaw Indians in Lake county, has married the widow of his two older brothers. Several years ago the eldest brother married and lived with his bride but a short time, when he died. The second brother then married the woman. After eighteen months he, too, passed away. The widow was taken into the home of the youngest brother as his wife and they are living together happily. The tribe is fast becoming extinct, and it is a difficult matter for the men, who far exceed the women in numbers, to select a wife not in some way related to him.

HEAT CUTS SHORT CATHOLIC WEEK

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Aug. 23.—When the delegates to the fifteenth annual convention of the American Federation of Catholic Societies met today, it was with the intention of rushing through their business to a hasty conclusion instead of extending the meetings through Thursday. The intention to cut short the convention was brought about by the intense heat wave under which New York is now sweltering. Many delegates left for home last night without waiting for the election of officers and the selection of a next meeting place.

The movement of a faction of the Catholic women's league to form an independent organization has received the support of Archbishop Sebastian Messmer, of Milwaukee. It was announced that a meeting was held last night at which the archbishop presided and the following committee was appointed to take up the task of bringing about a separate section for the women: Miss Helen Haney of Randolph, Mass.; Mrs. Sarah A. Conroy of New York; Mrs. C. A. Walsh of Philadelphia; Miss Margaret Leach of Pittsburgh; Mrs. S. K. Wilson of Chicago; Mrs. Charles Cosgrain of Detroit; Mrs. Mary J. Workman of Los Angeles, and Miss C. Germerhausen.

"I have always been in favor of a separate federation for Catholic women," said Archbishop Messmer.

"But as they are now united with the federation of societies, they can form a separate section."

Of the 300 women delegates, about thirty attended the meeting. The separatists are to form a plan which will be submitted to the executive board of the federation. If it is approved, it will be taken up at the next annual convention.

A sharp tilt developed at the meeting this morning between Col. Patrick Callahan of Louisville, chairman of the committee on religious prejudice of the Knights of Columbus, and Joseph T. Brennan of Boston.

In addressing the convention, Col. Callahan said:

"One of the purposes of our committee is to dissuade the non-Catholics who claim that the Catholics look through the eyes of the capitalists. I notice, however, that there is no unanimity among the Catholics, which is easy to see from the newspaper reports of this convention. The question of religious prejudice is the greatest before the American people today. It is even greater than the hyphenate question. It is not so much a religious question, and it concerns the entire American people."

Col. Callahan went on to say that he congratulated the non-Catholic people on their fairness and tolerance. When he had finished Mr. Brennan leaped to his feet and arrested attention, made himself heard.

"It is nothing short of silly to make such a remark that the five-sixths of the population that is non-Catholic is fair to us," he shouted.

"It is soft soap and nothing more. The Catholics cannot thrive without a struggle, and I can speak with authority of conditions in Massachusetts. There the Catholics give annually $4,000,000 to the state and what does the state give them? Nothing. Let us not be blind to the fact that there is prejudice against us Catholics. It is absurd to say anything else."

J. P. Brennan of Boston was dropped as sixth vice-president, being succeeded by Peter Gand.

The officers chosen were: President, John Whalen of New York; first vice president, Thomas P. Flynn of Chicago; second vice president, J. A. Collier of Shakopee, Minn.; third vice president, Joseph Frey of New York; fourth vice president, J. J. Hynes of Buffalo; fifth vice president, Joseph McLaughlin of Philadelphia; sixth vice president, Peter Gand; secretary, Anthony Matre of Chicago; treasurer, C. H. Schulte, of Detroit; marshal, Anthony Kuhn of Victoria, Kans.

Kansas City was unanimously chosen as the next convention city.

The delegates adopted without a dissenting vote the recommendation of the organization committee to reorganize the federation. It was suggested that the constitution be elaborated and that the name be changed to the Catholic Federation of the United States.

The reorganization plans must be approved by the bishops of the country before they can be effective, but it is said that most of them already approve the suggestion.

The Rev. Father Garosh of St. Louis appealed to the federation to establish Catholic organizations for young men similar to the Y. M. C. A.

The convention adjourned shortly after noon.

Ancients Insured Their Crops.

The rural Indians of Peru still believe in "paying the Incas" for fear that their crops will fail if the ancient observances are neglected.

Burnt offerings of drugs and aromatic plants are still made and small images are buried in the fields for the benefit of the crops and the herds. Such are the stone carvings, called mullu or pichas de Charasani, that are still sold in the native market of La Paz, Bolivia—National Geographic Magazine.

BIG MONEY WILL DECIDE R. R. POLICY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Aug. 23.—The great financial interests behind the railroads of the country are now reaching a decision whether they will accept the demand of President Wilson to agree to an eight-hour work day at a ten-hour wage rate to prevent a general railroad strike. While they are doing so, the railway presidents now here are sparring for time. A definite decision hardly will be reached before Friday and may be deferred until early next week. But intimations reaching here from New York and Chicago make it plain that eventually President Wilson will secure recognition of the main points of his demand and the railroads will have laid the foundation for permanency in settling wage disputes.

Following today's session of the sub-committee of the railway presidents which has been authorized to arrange an agreement if possible, the following statement was issued:

"A meeting of the presidents and managers was held this morning, and a recess taken until six o'clock."

"Chairman Holden stated that the report being circulated that any conclusion had been reached was incorrect."

BUILDING COLLAPSES.

Two Men Probably Dead Under Ruins in New York.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Aug. 23.—A five story building in course of construction in Marion avenue, between 187th and 188th streets, collapsed today burying several workmen in the ruins.

Ambulances from three hospitals, two companies of firemen and police reserves were called to the scene of the accident.

Twenty-five men were caught in the collapse, but all except two escaped with minor injuries. The two missing men are believed to have perished.

William Butler, foreman of the company constructing the building, was arrested on a technical charge of homicide and a member of the firm, was held as a material witness.

Mr. Roberts of New York city has been ill for over a month at the home of Mrs. James S. Mack, "Hill air," where he and his wife have been boarding for the season. Glad to report he is gaining nicely and was on the porch Saturday. His friends hope for his speedy recovery.

We have had a week of most glorious, clear, cool weather and now it seems we are going to have just the reverse for it is exceedingly warm. It seems the weather has been favorable for people to go on auto trips and never has there been so much touring at this summer.

The reason perhaps is the good thoroughfare from the river, making it a pleasure to tourists to come through here. They have good ferry service, running late in the evening, making it a great feature to all going through the country.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Parks of Poughkeepsie were in this place last Sunday.

The horses, all cows and Henry's new automobile, a Vello Six, were gotten out just in time. It is not known how the fire started. He lost his hay and farming utensils which was a heavy loss.

THE POSTMASTERS GENERAL.

Interesting Historical Facts Relating to the Postal Service.

The recent meeting of the National Association of Postmasters in the capital city of the nation, the many interesting papers that were read and the general interest shown in the work, calls attention to the remarkable activity displayed in every branch of the postal service since the beginning of Postmaster General Burleson's administration. The press of the country has taken notice of this great development, which is not only a compliment to the present head of the department, but would seem to show that the south can furnish quite as capable and energetic business men as the east, from which section nearly one-half of all our postmasters general have been drawn.

It is a noteworthy fact, however it may be explained, that, excluding the border states, the south, properly speaking, has had but two men in that office since the days of Benjamin Franklin—Joseph Habersham, of Georgia, and Albert Sidney Burleson, of Texas. The more populous states of the east, with their political power and material advantages, have had the greatest number of such appointments. 23 of the 48 men who have held that office having come from that section. The border states have had 15 and the west only 8. It was not until 1866 that the west was at all recognized in the appointment of such cabinet officer, when Alexander W. Randall, of Wisconsin, was chosen by President Johnson. Subsequently that state furnished three more postmasters general, viz., Howe, Vilas, and Payne. In 1829 the postmaster general became a member of the cabinet by the action of President Jackson, his first appointee to that position, the Hon. William T. Barry, of Kentucky, receiving that honor.

Pennsylvania and New York Lead.

In considering the states of the Union which have been most fortunate in appointments to this office, it is found that Pennsylvania and New York have each had 6 to their credit; Connecticut, Kentucky, Tennessee and Wisconsin, 4 each; Massachusetts, Maryland and Ohio, 3 each, and the remaining scattered among the 18 states from which all the postmasters general have been selected.

The term of service was, it seems, much longer in the olden days than at present. From 1775 to 1850—75 years—there were only 17 men in that position, Gideon Granger, of Connecticut, having served 13 years and 8 months, and Return J. Meigs, of Ohio, 9 years and 3 months. From 1850 to 1913—63 years—there have been 31 men in that office. Whether the shifting currents of political life and expediency, or other causes, have operated to make changes in this office, it appears that many occurred in the administrations of some of our chief executives. Roosevelt, for instance, had 4 postmasters general; Grant, Arthur and Cleveland (in the latter's two terms) also had 4 each; Washington and Buchanan 3; Jackson, Fillmore, Lincoln, Hayes and McKinley, 2 each. The remainder of the presidents evidently held on to the men they had originally appointed.

The postmaster general being by the nature of his official duties brought into close contact with the people, it might be of interest to know something of these men, who they were, and what notable achievements are connected with their names; but all that is past history and does not concern the issues of today. A few of the more important measures may, however, here be mentioned.

During the administration of President Tyler, while Hon. Charles A. Wickliffe, of Kentucky, was postmaster general, many reforms were instituted, such as cheapening the postage, improving the manner of letting routes by contract, prohibiting private expresses, and restricting the franking privilege. The "foreign desk," from which ultimately grew the admirable arrangement of the Postal Union, was instituted by Hon. Horatio King, of Maine. Through the efforts of Judge Hall, of New York, postmaster general under President Fillmore, the postage on letters was reduced to three cents. The registration system came in under Postmaster General Campbell, of Pennsylvania, during the administration of President Pierce. The Free Delivery Service was inaugurated in 1863 by Hon. Montgomery Blair, of Maryland, also the money order system in 1864, in Lincoln's administration. The Railway Mail Service dates from July 1862, when Judge Holt, of Kentucky, ordered its establishment, the first railway post office being from Quincy, Ill., to Saint Joseph, Mo., on the Hannibal & St. Joseph Railway.

Historical Data of Beginning and Progress.

Some interesting historical data touching the introduction or beginning of the chief features of postal progress other than that already given may be briefly summarized as follows:

Postage Stamps first issued, at New York, July, 1847
Stamped Envelopes first issued, June, 1853
Letters Registered, July, 1855
Newspaper Wrappers, Feb. 1861
Act of Congress, Feb. 1861
Free City Delivery, July, 1863
Money Order System, Nov., 1864
International Money Orders, Oct., 1867
Postal Cards, May, 1873
Postage reduced to 2c., Oct., 1883
Special Delivery, Oct., 1885
Rural Delivery, Oct., 1896

Postal Savings Jan., 1911
Parcel Post Jan., 1913
The number of post offices in 1789 was 75, maximum number reaching 76,945, in 1901, since which time, by the introduction of rural delivery, the number has steadily declined, 20,565 having been discontinued. July 1, 1915, there were 56,380 post offices in operation.
Extent of post routes in miles in 1790 was 1,875. In 1915 the number was 1,672,169. The miles of service performed in 1915 amounted to 617,527,795.
The entire compensation paid to postmasters in 1789 was $1,657. In 1915 the amount so paid was $20,143,127.
Salary of Rural Delivery carriers has been increased from $200 per annum in 1897 to $1,200, the present rate. Present cost of Rural Delivery service per annum, $52,000,000.

Economical, Yet Efficient, Service Required.

Statistics of official interest as showing the various steps of postal progress are all well enough in their way, but we live in an age where new subjects and vital questions occupy the stage and demand consideration, prominent among which at this time is that of economical, yet effective, public administration. To this subject the present postmaster general has given his attention, and having served in congress—on the Committee of Appropriations—is interested to know how the public money is spent and what return is received for it, and being in position to find out at least so far as his department is concerned, has taken the necessary steps to discover it. He has accomplished a great deal in that direction and will accomplish more. There was great need of official inquiry and oversight and he has zealously devoted his time to that purpose.
Aside from the many reforms introduced and betterments made possible, two matters of great public interest may be credited to this postal administration, viz., the Postal Savings and the Parcel Post features. While the Postal Savings idea dates from 1911, it was not made practically operative until 1914, when unnecessary restrictions were removed and the plan popularized and encouraged. Amount to credit of depositors in 1915 was $65,684,768, divided among 525,414 persons, who took advantage of this safe and convenient way of investing their savings.

The Postal Service has become a wonderful organization, transacting an average of $1,000,000 worth of business daily, through something like 300,000 human agents, at 50,000 post offices and 6,500 stations of all kinds, handling annually about 1,000,000,000 parcels, 10,000,000,000 pieces of first-class mail, and more than 1,000,000,000 pounds of second-class matter, serving the millions of people of our own land and conveying mail to all parts of the world.

Motorcyclist Runs a Tree.

Frank Goodman, a motorcyclist, lost control of his machine Wednesday near Newburgh and ran into a tree, fracturing both his legs. John Nixon, driver of a big Adams Express truck, ditched his machine to avoid running over Goodman.

Postpone Farm Day a Year.

The Farmers' Fair and Field Association has postponed its Labor Day meet in Leptondale, Orange county, from Labor Day next month to the same day in 1917. "The infantile paralysis epidemic led to the change."

Newburgh Plant Increase.

Newburgh is interested in the reported extension of the Manoil Talking Machine factory. One hundred hands may be employed before the new year.

"Good, Isn't It, Grandpa?"

"Yes, Sonny, Postum is good, and much better for you than coffee—you'll know why, sometime. In fact, children should never drink coffee or tea—and most grown-ups would be better off without either."

"In coffee and tea there's a drug that is harmful, especially for children, and it often causes troublesome conditions in older folks."

Originally Latin Phrase.

The origin of the phrase: "All my eye, Betty Martin" comes of mispronunciation of the Latin "O mibi, bene Martin" which is literally, "O blessed Martin (help) me" and is found in several instances of the middle ages. Now it is slang for a lie. There are several such Latin phrases which have been degraded or transmuted. Hocus pocus is derived from the solemn "hoc est corpus," and similarly is a corruption of carterium.

What the Dots Mean.

When you see . . . three little dots . . . such as these . . . it is the stuff of a modern versifier even in our stuff . . . it means that the writer . . . is trying to suggest something rather . . . well, elusive. TALES OF ANCIENT CITY OF ARMENIA

Washington, D. C., Aug. 23.—Bilis, the Armenian city from which the Russians conceded their retirement recently in the face of a superior Turkish force, is the subject of the following war geography bulletin issued today from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"With its thick-walled houses built of volcanic rock, the town of Bilis, spreading over the steep banks of the Bilis Chal, a tributary of the Tigris, is one of the most picturesque communities of Asia Minor. Its inhabitants, 35,000 in number, one third of whom are Armenians and the others of Kurdish descent, are largely engaged in the manufacture of a coarse red cloth, while their commercial activities are chiefly confined to the export of an inferior grade of tobacco and the gathering and shipment of gum tragacanth.

"Bilis for hundreds of years has been a town of great strategic importance because it is situated on the main highway between the Van plateau and the plains of Mesopotamia. Lake Van is only 50 miles to the east; Mush is 40 miles to the northwest, and Erzerum a little more than 100 miles in the same direction. Roads lead through a mountain pass in a southerly direction toward Mosul, which is more than 150 miles distant in an airline.

Where Alexander Built.

"Owing to its elevation, nearly a mile above sea level, Bilis suffers greatly from snowstorms and it not infrequently happens that many of its narrow streets are blocked by snowdrifts for four or five months of the year, although the temperature seldom falls below zero.

"Like many of the towns in this 'morning land of history,' Bilis has had a most interesting past. Fact and fable are so intricately interwoven, however, that the reader of Kurdish literature finds it equally hard to be wholly credulous or altogether skeptical. One of the most interesting traditions of the town concerns the site of the ruins of a castle occupying the triangle at the juncture of two streams near the center of the city. Here Alexander the Great is said to have built a fortress during his campaign of world conquest. Nineteen centuries later, almost under the shadow of this castle, the great Turkish sultan, Soliman the Magnificent, met one of his few defeats at the hands of the Persians whom he subdued many times, just as he defeated many European armies on the plains and in the mountain fastnesses of Hungary during his brilliant reign of nearly half a century, marking the height of the Ottoman empire.

Tamerlane Named Ruler.

"It was in the 14th century that a subject of the great Mongol war lord, Tamerlane, was appointed to rule this part of Asia after the conquest of Diarbekir. The official entrusted with this duty was Anir Qara Uthman (Black Lord Uthman), who, instead of perpetrating such cruelties as did his master in building a pyramid of 2,000 human beings piled up with alternate layers of brick and mortar, conquered the land by matrimony. Taking a daughter of the noble Kurdish family of Hakkari as his wife, Qara Uthman soon won his way into the affections of the people, so that when Tamerlane's power began to wane this viceroy was able to retain a strong hold upon the mountain tribes. Uthman's descendants adopted the title of Princes of Bilis and they held sway in this region for more than four centuries. The last of this remarkable line was Sharif Bey who held out against the preponderant power of the Turks for several years during the first half of the 19th century but was finally defeated and taken a captive to Constantinople in 1849.

"The Kurds, who constituted two thirds of the population of Bilis and who have held sway in this mountainous region of Asia Minor for many centuries, have been variously appraised by travelers. One extreme view is that they are as destitute of annals as the wolves and jackals among whom they have lived in the high mountains from immemorial times, while the writer who estimates the other side of the shield of their character speaks glowingly of the mountaineers thus: 'Every nation that ever acquired fame and name in the eastern world's history—Assyrian, Parthian, Greek, Roman, Persian, the Arabs, Mohammedans and Mongols—has invaded this part of western Asia, yet the 'holders of the hills and the possessors of the tongue' have withstood every army and have retained the purity of their Aryan blood and their Aryan language.'

Two Picturesque Legends.

"Concerning the origin of the Kurds there are two picturesque Persian legends. The first relates that at the suggestion of the devil the serpents of the mythological monster Zohak were regularly fed upon human brains. Two youths who had been condemned to have their heads robbed for serpent sustenance escaped death by substituting goats' brains for their own. These youths became the progenitors of the Kurds.

"The other legend is a bit more exotic, as if it had come from the fabled loom which wove the tales of the 'Thousand and One Nights.' It relates that during his campaign for the collection of 100 wives, King Solomon ordered a contingent of 400 virgins from the Far East. While on their way to Jerusalem they passed through the Bilis region and here a band of evil spirits mingled with the prospective brides of the wisest king. The news reached Solomon and he immediately ordered the young women to come no nearer his court, but to remain with the spirits who had contaminated them. The Kurds, says this legend, are the offsprings of this mating of the virgins with the evil ones."

NOT GOING TO "SAVE HANDS."

Freddie Welsh Promises Distinct Novelty for Labor Day.

By Telegraph to The Freeman, Colorado Springs, Colo., Aug. 23.—Freddie Welsh is nothing if not confident. Regarding his coming championship fight with Charley White on Labor Day, the Briton unbosomed himself thusly today: "Heretofore in my fights I have been saving my hands. This time I want vindication. The boxing public will see a different Freddie Welsh for his championship. "I have worked out a defense that Charley White or any other lightweight cannot penetrate."

Distinctive in its simplicity is the pressed felt hat illustrated. The severe backward swoop of the brim is the notable feature. White silk grosgrain ribbon is cleverly manipulated so as to form a border in contrast to the black brim. This is a hat that may readily be worn in combination with a strictly tailored or semi-tailored outfit.

PAEONIAN GIRL'S INDUSTRY FAMOUS

But Modern Dealers in Dolan Are Not Such Workers—History of Region Shows of Saloniika Drive.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington D. C., Aug. 23.—Dolan, the town at which the Franco-British forces from Salonika began their long-expected drive recently, is described in the following war geography bulletin issued by the National Geographic Society from its Washington headquarters:

"Situated on the frontier between Serbia and Greece, and only about ten miles south of the Bulgarian boundary, Dolan, also known as Polianino, is 40 miles northwest of Salonika on the southern shore of the almost circular lake of the same name. It was doubtless chosen as the point of first attack by the allies because it is connected by rail with Salonika, the road from the Greek port to Constantinople here making a great loop to the northwest and then returning eastward by way of Seres, an important town about 45 miles northeast of the Salonika base of operations.

"Lake Dolan, nestling under the southern declivities of the Belasitzza mountain range, is probably the Lake Prasias mentioned by Herodotus whose description of the Paeonians, living in houses built over the edge of the water, fits it in a measure the modern fishermen living in huts in this vicinity. The women of present-day Dolan are not so famous for their industry, however, as were their noted forebears, of whom the Greek historian relates a typical story to the effect that Darius, seeing a beautiful Paeonian girl carrying a pitcher of water on her head, leading a horse to drink, and at the same time spinning flax, immediately ordered his Thracian general to send two tribes of these Paeonians into Asia in order that they might instill a similar spirit of thrift among the Persians.

"Eight miles west of Dolan is the Vardar river, which rises in the Shar Mountains, flows through the Uskup plain and enters the Gulf of Salonika, thus constituting for hundreds of years the principal route from Central Europe to the Aegean Sea. Between the Vardar and the Struma river (to the east) extend the Belasitzza Mountains, a range some 50 miles in length forming part of the southern boundary of Bulgaria.

Blinded 15,000 Soldiers.

"The name of these mountains will always be associated with one of the most harrowing episodes of the middle ages, for it was at the battle of Belasitzza that Samuel, the Bulgarian czar who had conquered practically all of the Balkan peninsula, and whose sway extended from the Danube to Morea, met defeat at the hands of the redoubtable Byzantine emperor, Basil II, surnamed Bulgaroktonos (Slayer of Bulgarians). Basil had laid the foundation for his success a quarter of a century previously when he rode out in front of his troops at Abydos and challenged his rebel general, Phocas, wheeling his horse preparatory to accepting the challenge, fell from his charger and when picked up by his soldiers was found to be dead.

"During the battle of Belasitzza in 1014 Basil captured 15,000 Bulgarians. He blinded the whole number, leaving but one eye to every hundred man, spared to this extent in order that he might act as a guide for the pitiable host of warriors thus returned to their czar. When Samuel beheld this helpless army of his mutilated subjects marching toward him he fainted and two days later died of grief. With him died the Slavonic empire of the Balkans and for a century and a half thereafter the Bulgarians were subject to the Byzantine rulers."

Can't Even Tote Rum.

Macon, Ga., Aug. 23.—Macon is in deadly earnest in her fight against Demon Rum. The penalty is $100 fine, thirty days imprisonment, or both.

STREET GOSSIP ABOUT TOWN

Such is the law—A man commits a crime, and a judge finds him guilty and commits him to jail. Then the man gets a lawyer who gets up a paper and presents it to a judge of a higher court, and that judge signs the paper, and then the sheriff unlocks the jail door and the man is free again. Then the man commits another crime and—well it's only another technicality of the law.

Somewhat self evident—A young man slowly propelled himself along the city street as though walking was an exertion when he is accosted by a friend who asks "Are you going to school now Alfred?"

"No I am working for my father," is the reply.

"I suppose you find lots to keep you busy," is the query.

"Believe me it takes very little to keep me busy," and the young man slowly proceeds on his way to work.

Sample street conversation these days—

Hot ain't it—Yep awful hot—

Makes me sweat—Me too—Never knew it to be so hot—it is dreadful hot—Ain't it—Goo'by—Goo'by.

A fable—Once upon a time there was a great epidemic and a city took proper precautions to bar out the disease by placing a strict quarantine. It kept children from neighboring cities out of the city. Then business fell off, and a few merchants got together and talked over matters, and decided to bring pressure on the health board to relieve quarantine so business could pick up. And they did and the health board did. Then there broke out in the city a number of cases, and it cost the city much money to subdue the epidemic and the next year the tax rate shot higher than ever to pay for the expenses of fighting the epidemic. But business had to be assisted.

We picked some tomatoes from our own vines today, and we felt real proud and well repaid for the trouble taken in planting the vines. We might add we paid for the plants, and did not get them free from the government. That might be the reason why we were able to harvest some tomatoes today with the prospect of harvesting more.

Our success with our tomato plants, which we bought, has led us to determine to sit down and type the government a nice letter asking them to use the money that it costs for the free seed they sent us in help building a battleship. We think that if every one who gets free seed would do the same that we would soon have enough money on hand to build the ship. We are willing to start this movement toward a free seed battleship. We are not particular about what name this fund is called. Might suggest calling it the free seed battleship fund. Each one who writes might be presented with a button bearing on its face the picture of a free seed. Pass along the idea neighbor.

Advice is one of the things in this world that is freely given—and seldom used.

Now that President Wilson has named three members of the United States-Mexico board we might as well prepare to be bored with lengthy reports of consultations that at the close will leave the Mexican situation as it is today, as clear as mud.

It's hard to keep cheerful these hot days when the young man next door is learning to play a cornet says Constant Reader.

And it's easier to knock than it is to applaud the young woman taking singing lessons who arises at an early hour each morning when it is cool to practice adds Old Subscriber.

BLOOMING IS GRATEFUL.

Hebrew School Teacher Thanks Those Who Aided Him.

Joseph Blooming of Greenfield, town of Wawarsing, who has arrested some time ago by Sheriff Shultis on a body execution but was released after Lawyer Henry Klein had interested a number of Kingstonians in his behalf and collected sufficient money to satisfy the judgment against Blooming, has written a letter to Leventhal Brothers expressing his appreciation and thanks for what was done for him.

Blooming was a school teacher before taking up farming and when he first went to Greenfield he was employed to teach Hebrew to Jewish children. His letter is written entirely in Hebrew and his use of the language is pronounced by those acquainted with Hebrew to be perfect.

A literal translation of the letter has been made which indicates the extremely rare appreciation of the writer, who says in part:

"There is only justice in Heaven. You should always do justice and good in this world. For the whole community of Kingston, composed of citizens of honor and refinement, I have only praise for the relief you granted to me. Your love for the stranger within your gates is as almighty as the sun in its glory, and good fortune shall shine for you as the sun, for your goodness. May God protect you from all evil and grant you happiness. Your reward shall be from the Almighty God, and shall be double what you expect. May your life be prolonged and your business good, and may blessings be continued for you into the future for many years. Do not be angry at my brief letter or think that I have been angry because I did not write before. May my letter bring a blessing on all of you."

IT WILL BE SOME EXCITING GAME

When the Police and Firemen Meet on September 13, at Athletic Field—Proceeds For Benefit of Both Pension Funds.

The paid firemen and the police are doing some great training stunts for the great game to be held on September 13, at the Athletic Field when picked men from both departments will clash in one of the most thrilling baseball games pulled off in Kingston in years.

In looking over the many players on the police squad it should not be forgotten that the paid firemen have some exceptionally fine players. There is LaRue Weber, who in his balmy days was a star in the Hudson River League. He has not forgotten his former cunning and great things may be looked forward to when he dons a suit and strides out on the diamond. Strubel and McElrah are also past stars of the diamond, and will do mighty work when the game is called.

Owing to the fact that it has been such hot weather some of the police have been unable to summon enough energy to train seriously to reduce their flesh, and there has been some talk of permitting Policemen Fout to have his auto on the sidelines so that when the stouter members of the police squad slam the ball that they can do their base running from the seat of Fout's car while the latter drives it around the diamond.

The firemen are agreed if they are allowed to use the auto truck for the same purpose, as some of their men are also somewhat stout.

In the meantime secret practice is being indulged in. "Slime" Wood, the patrol driver, is getting his wind in shape by driving around in the patrol wagon for exercise.

Fuller details will be given later, but don't forget to buy a ticket when asked. Both pension funds need the money.

QUARANTINES ARE GROWING STRONGER

As the infantile paralysis epidemic is sweeping upstate other cities are following the example set by Kingston and are adopting the same stringent quarantine regulations in force here, as it has been found the only method to prevent an outbreak of the disease.

Schenectady now has its first case of infantile paralysis and it was positively diagnosed as such on Tuesday. The victim is Henry Marhafer, six years old, of 921 Crane street. He has been isolated with his mother in the city's detention hospital. Steps were taken to isolate other children who had come in contact with the boy, and everything is being done to prevent a spread of the disease. Schenectady is a large city, and the only reason it has escaped having cases of the disease before was the strict quarantine measures taken, and which are now being made even more stringent.

Dust Now Suspected.

Experiments to determine whether dust is the medium by which infantile paralysis is spread are being conducted by Federal surgeons. Laboratory tests and examinations of dust are being made.

Children Kept Off Streets.

In Poughkeepsie sixty-five cases of the disease are reported with nineteen deaths. Dr. John S. Wilson has taken the most drastic step since the appearance of the disease in that city by barring all children less than sixteen years of age from the public streets, and the police have been notified to co-operate in the enforcement of the order.

Nineteen Year Old Girl Dead.

Miss Dorothy Griffiths of Granville, died on Sunday at the hospital at Blackwell's Island after a two days' illness of infantile paralysis. She was 19 years old, and graduated last year from the Granville High School and soon afterward entered the training class for nurses at Blackwell's Island.

EPIDEMIC GROWS OUTSIDE NEW YORK

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, Aug. 23.—Infantile paralysis cases took a big jump today when 14 new cases were reported to the state health department and four deaths, pushing the totals to 1,569 and 164 respectively.

This is the largest number reported in any half day and it was said at the health department that without doubt today's number would establish new records.

Today's cases were reported mainly from Long Island, the Roslyn branch reporting 37 of the cases. The Middletown branch reported 3 cases while 15 were reported from Westchester county.

Other places reporting cases were: Lockport, Niagara county; Fultonville, Montgomery county; Brutus, Cayuga county; Baldwinsville, Onondaga county; Poughkeepsie, four; East Fishkill, Dutchess county; 2; Oswego and Scribo, Oswego county; Saratoga and Middle Grove, Saratoga county; Oneonta City and Oneonta town, Otsego county; Red Hook, Dutchess county; New Berlin, Chango county; Cornwall, Orange county.

In other years when the epidemic of infantile paralysis has been on the peak has been reached during September. The health department expects that this year the highest number of cases will be reached next month when there will be a sudden falling off.

Deaths today were reported from Huntington, Suffolk county; Red Hook and East Fishkill, Dutchess county, and Ocean Beach, Suffolk county.

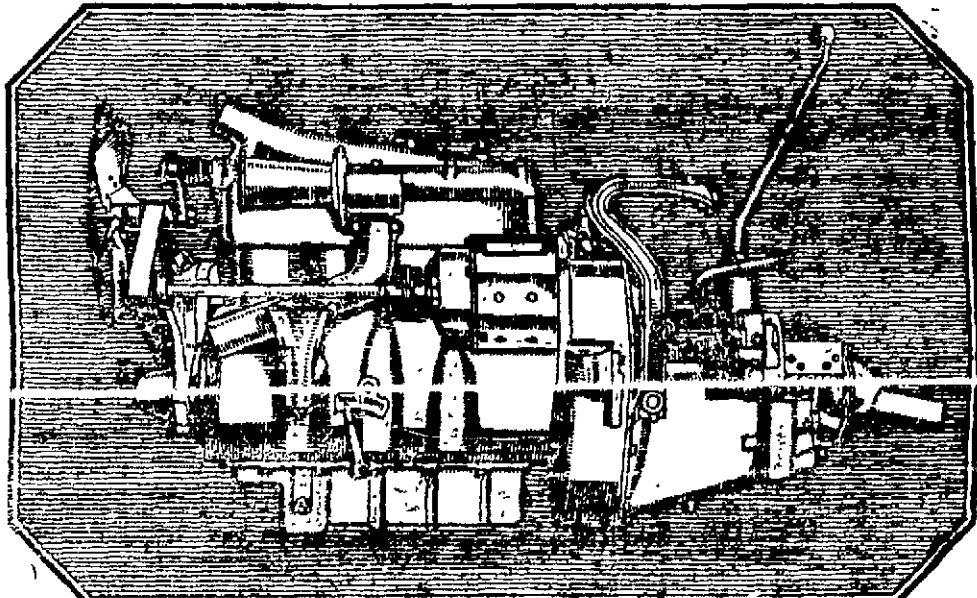

No Quorum in City.

Horse Power

From This Powerful MAXWELL ENGINE

Almost 34 horse-power from this regular stock Maxwell engine!

34 actual, brake horse-power!

Proved by an accurate dynamometer test, made in the Maxwell laboratories August 10, 1916.

There has been a lot of talk about horse-power, and we just want to let Maxwell owners and prospective owners know that in respect to horse-power, as in most other respects, the Maxwell leads by a comfortable margin. Not that we attach such great importance to horse-power. We don't. We never have.

Horse-power—abundant horse-power—is only one of many superior features of the Maxwell.

We are selling motor cars—complete motor cars—not engines or horse-power.

Horse-power is a matter that is secondary to motor efficiency and economy.

A giant has no advantage if he does not apply, or wrongly applies, his strength.

Maxwell cars have horse-power—all you want or need—probably more per pound of car weight than any other automobile in the world.

But we don't make any loud cry about it.

Because we have more than horse-power to sell you.

Because you are, and should be, interested in results, the net effectiveness of power.

We challenge competitive tests. We invite comparison.

Because we absolutely know that no car of its class or weight can surpass the Maxwell on speedways, on rough roads, through sand or mud, anywhere.

And because we know, and you will know, that, everything considered, the Maxwell is the World's Greatest Motor Car Value.

TOPICS NEW YORK IS TALKING ABOUT

(From Our Regular Correspondent)

Governor Hughes has made it perfectly clear that as president he will advocate the restoration of the duty on sugar. According to the Republican view, the duty on sugar is highly important because it plays a dual part, protecting the beet sugar industry of the entire country and the cane sugar industry of Louisiana and because it yields a tremendous revenue without imposing any material burden on the consumers. That the sugar tariff can be made to yield a large revenue has been certified to by the Democrats in repealing a portion of the Underwood bill which would have put sugar completely on the free list before it could go into operation. The Republican duty on sugar yielded annually $53,000,000 revenue. This duty President Wilson, against the advice of Rep. Underwood and other more experienced Democrats, insisted upon abolishing and congress, supreme before his mandate, incorporated in the Underwood bill a provision which would have put sugar on the free list by successive steps. When, however, practically 75% of the duty had been removed the deficit in the treasury loomed so large, despite the special taxes which had been imposed, that the Democratic leaders decided to repeal the clause which would have abolished the last of the sugar duty and thus avoid a further loss of approximately $15,000,000, and this was done, with the help of Republican votes. Mr. Hughes now indicates that one of the constructive policies of the administration will be the restoration of the duty on sugar, with, presumably, an increase of the customs revenues from this one item alone of, according to present rates of consumption, nearly $60,000,000. Some of Mr. Hughes Democratic critics have been urging him to propose a constructive policy. This is his answer to such criticism.

The Shipping Bill.

Certain of your readers have written suggesting that the criticism of the shipping bill in this correspondence was unduly harsh, that it struck them as partisan rather than just. The truth is that the severest critics of the shipping bill are Democrats. They dare not openly criticize the measure because they fear the revenge of the president, and more especially, of his son-in-law, Secretary McAdoo, the real father of the shipping bill. In proof of this, note what the New York Times, a Democratic paper which is loyally supporting Wilson, has to say. It says of the shipping bill which has gone to conference, "It is not the old bill. It may be harmless because futile, but is still open to a multitude of objections," and again "The shipping bill is a shadow of its original form as it approaches enactment. Meanwhile the case against it has grown strengthened further by the omission of other causes of original opposition—as, for example, by the omission of the use of government money in antagonizing private enterprise—there might be acquiescence in the fragment that is left." The Times, which certainly cannot be suspected of Republican partisanship in view of its loyal support of Mr. Wilson, does not say, as your correspondent has said, that the only purposes in passing what is left of the shipping bill are (1) to "save the face of the president," (2) to provide places for "deserving Democrats" at $7,500 a year and expenses, and (3) to make $50,000,000 of government funds available for expenditure by the administration during the presidential campaign. The Times can hardly be expected to say that. But it does make perfectly clear that there is no good reason for passing it, that there are many valid objections to it, and it leaves to the common sense of its readers to decide what are the real reasons back of the administration's insistence on its passage.

Wilson Losing Grip.

As seen from afar, President Wilson appears to be losing the grip he has had on congress. With the vast patronage at his disposal and Secretary McAdoo's reputation for never failing to get even with a politician who opposes either the president or himself, Mr. Wilson has been able to dictate absolutely to congress heretofore. But as if they foresaw his defeat in November, certain Democratic senators are now leading a revolt. President Wilson, after vetoing the immigration bill, forbade its reconsideration as he considered it politically inexpedient to agitate the subject further on the eve of the presidential election. Accordingly the Democratic caucus of the senate met and voted to lay the bill aside until after the election. Now, however, ten Democrats have bolted the caucus and voted to take up and re-pass the bill. The loyal Democratic senators are still trying to carry out Mr. Wilson's orders and may prove successful, as they have authority to make generous promises of patronage to those who will recant and obey the White House, and to make dire threats of executive wrath to those who remain of the reservation.

Strikes and Safeties.

New York is still awaiting with eager interest the outcome of the railroad strike negotiations being carried on at Washington although it is still confident that a strike will be averted. New Yorkers are generally relieved that the renewed danger of a street-car strike has been dissipated by the yielding of the companies to certain demands which were supported by the mayor. But there is now another strike which has greatly increased the demand for safety razors and which threatens to make New Yorkers generally resemble William Jennings Bryan or Senator Vardaman. The New York barbers have gone on strike and only men whose wives are experts with scissors and a bowl can find relief from superfluous hair and whiskers.

WHEN A MAN'S A MAN.

Harold Bell Wright, Famous Author, Illustrates His Own Book.

"When a Man's a Man," by Harold Bell Wright, is the seventh "best seller" from his versatile pen. With the appearance of Mr. Wright's first book, "The Printer of Udell's," the novelist was heralded as "coming." When his delightfully sweet story, "The Shepherd of the Hills," followed a few years later it was said that he had "arrived." But it was something new in the publishing world for an author to write, consecutively, three successful books, and "The Calling of Dan Matthews," "true to the four corners of the earth," came as a genuine surprise. When "best sellers" continued to come from his pen in "The Winning of Barbara Worth," followed by "Their Yesterdays," and in turn by "The Eyes of the World," the question was asked, what manner of man is this who writes "best sellers" only? Harold Bell Wright has been called "the apostle of the wholesome" and in his new story, "When a Man's a Man," a story of manhood—he has nobly sustained the characterization. "When a Man's a Man" is a story of the real heart of the life of the unspoiled land of ranch and range in Northern Arizona. The illustrations and decorations—about fifty in all—are made by the author from sketches drawn on the scenes of the story.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke)

New York, Aug. 24.—John K. Tener echoes the sentiments of William Chase Temple that "Honus Wagner is the greatest ball player the game has produced."

The National League executive, like Temple, points out that over a sweep of two decades the Pirate star never has made a mental fizzle. "Wagner's brain is always working," said Tener, "with some uncanny power that is his, he seems to map out every play before it is made; he never makes a false move, never does the wrong thing. Mechanically and mentally he is a genius."

"The grand old warrior hasn't been given credit for being a smart player, yet I daresay he pulls more inside baseball in one season's sweep than most ball players do in a lifetime. But it always has seemed to be Wagner's misfortune to have the sport writers overlook his tricks and so he never has been given the real credit due him."

Wagner's Shrewd Play.

"Wagner executed a play in Pittsburgh some weeks ago that ranks, in my opinion, as one of the cleverest I ever have seen. Yet not one sport writer commented upon it, probably because the inside stuff escaped the notice of the experts."

"The Pirates were playing the Phillies. With one man down, Wagner got to first on a single. Schulz, the next Pirate, hit to Wagner off short who threw to Niehoff at second forcing out Wagner by a stride. Niehoff threw at once to Luderus at first in an effort to make a double play."

"And then came the Wagner trick. 'When he was forced at second, Honus didn't slow down. He streaked it for third hoping just as if he were still a live base runner to fool Luderus—and that is exactly what he did. Luderus, running toward first, to take the Niehoff throw had his back to the Wagner force out play. When he neared first he turned for the throw."

"And when he did he saw Wagner racing toward third. Luderus got Niehoff's throw but he didn't try to put out Schulz. He passed up Schulz and pegged to third hoping to catch Wagner, which was the real play—to try to kill off the man nearest to home."

Honus Confused Phillies.

"As the Luderus throw sailed toward third, Honus stopped running for that bag, whirled and started back for second. Niehoff raced toward second, meanwhile yelling that Wagner was out. But just the same Niehoff took the throw from third and started chasing Wagner. The aged Pirate eluded him and Niehoff then made the throw to third to head him off."

"Bancroft, like Niehoff, was almost sure that Wagner had been called out at second, but when they saw Luderus and Schulz making a play for Wagner and Honus running back and forth they became confused—just as Wagner had figured—and they played only for Wagner. They weren't sure they had heard right when the umpire called out Wagner—and they weren't taking chances."

"Meanwhile, Schulz rounded first and ran safely to second. Just as soon as Wagner saw Schulz anchored there, he stopped running, calmly mopped his forehead, permitted himself to be touched out and said: 'Warm day, isn't it, boys?' 'That is only one of the many many stunts Wagner has played in his time; bits of baseball strategy that seem to escape the notice of the observant; a play that not only saved the Pirates from being retired on a double force but one which placed safely on second base a man who would have been out at first if Wagner hadn't tricked the whole Phillies infield."

What Figures Show.

"The wonderful skill of Wagner as a player is shown by a comparison of his record with that of Napoleon Lajoie his only modern rival. The 'Flying Dutchman' in 19 years as a big leaguer (exclusive of 1916) played in 196 more games, made 117 more hits, scored 210 more runs and stole 335 more bases than Lajoie did in 20 years. And Wagner is a year older than Lajoie."

"A ball player's value is measured not only by what the averages show but by his constant service," said Temple. "The star who performs on 125 games per season certainly is of greater worth to his team than one who averages 100 games per year. And Wagner's full record shows that he has worked in a greater number of games per year than any other veteran of the past or present."

Hot Lingers.

(By Frank G. Menke)

The Dodgers were handed a 7 to 6 job by the lovely Cubs yesterday, while the third place Phillies suffered a 2 to 1 defeat at the hands of the Pirates.

Fournier's miserable miff of a perfect throw in the eighth paved the way for the Yankees 5 to 4 victory over the floundering White Sox.

The business of fattening their percentage mark at the expense of the Indians was undertaken yesterday by the Red Sox. Success crowned their efforts, the Sox snaring a 7 to 3 frolic.

By Cobb stole home against the Athletics while the third baseman held the ball.

The Brownies won the first game because of the Senatorial errors and then dropped the second through their own fumbles.

The Giants did not lose yesterday. They played some Dayton semi-pros.

The race for the American League batting honors continues close. Speaker hit for .500 yesterday, so did Cobb, while Jackson lammed 'em for .333.

Now he has regained some of his old time form, and is regarded as a formidable man in the ring. Moran is training more faithfully for the bout with Morris than he did for his bout with Jack Dillon.

Morris is six feet six inches in height and weighs around 260 pounds.
